VIOLENCE AND FIGHTING DISTURB IRISH ELECTION CAMPAIGN

RACIAL CLASHES IN BOMBAY

Cricket Game Leads To Guerilla Battle.

2 MOSLEMS, 1 HINDU, KILLED; MANY INJURED.

Bombay, To-day.
Two Moslems and one Hindu were killed and 20 Hindus, five Moslems and one Parsee were injured in a riot resulting from Hindu children playing cricket in a slum area.

The trouble began when a Pathan passer-by was struck by the ball. When he threatened the children he was challenged by Hindu watchman. Words turned to blows, and the rival communities gathered in force. A guerilla battle developed, stones, knives and sticks being freely used in the narrow streets.

The trouble spread over a wide area, two tramcars, two miles apart being stopped and the passengers dragged out. Those who were unable to escape were stabbed.

The panic spread to the main streets, where shops and restaurants were hastily closed and shuttered.

As a result of energetic police action the situation is now under control.

The riots follow yesterday's incident when two Moslems, who were among 1,000 refugees who were taking shelter from communal disturbances outside the Juma-Musjid, one of the largest marble mosques in the world, were injured when a bomb exploded nearby.

PRETTY LOCAL WEDDING.

Mr. P. W. G. Cameron Weds Miss G. Smith.

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH CEREMONY.

St. Joseph's Church, Garden Road, was the scene of a pretty wedding this afternoon, when Miss Geraldine "Toots" Smith, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. H. L. Smith, of Hong Kong, became the bride of Mr. Peter Weatherdon Grant Cameron, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Ian Grant Cameron of Mere Wils, England.

The Rev. Father A. Granelle officiated at the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Father R. W. Gallagher, S.J.

The bride, who looked charming, was given away by her uncle, Mr. W. J. Carroll. Her dress, which was a copy of Schiaparelli's collection of bridal dresses, was made of ivory coloured chiffon velvet, cut on the bias with a soft neckline, with long train, executed by Mme. Garnett. She carried a bouquet of white heather, which was sent out from England by the bridegroom's parents, and which was tied with the Cameron tartan. The only jewellery worn by the bride was a brooch, a personal gift from Mrs. Grant Cameron.

Miss Edna Carroll, as bridesmaid, wore a dress of pink tulle, also a copy of Schiaparelli's models, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. In attendance as the flower girls were the Misses Patricia and Gertrude Crosthwaite, who wore dresses of pink tulle, and carried little silver baskets filled with rose petals. As "Matron of Honour," Mrs. Smith looked becoming in a dress of gray chamoisee trimmed with gray laces with tulle to match. (Continued on Page 7.)

A British Fascist Wedding between Captain Collis Bird and Miss Joyce Clare, both members of the Fascist movement. The bride and bridegroom leaving after the ceremony through a guard of honour wearing the Fascist uniform and giving the Fascist salute. (S. & G.)

POPULATION DECREASES SLIGHTLY IN SPAIN.

Census Shows 23,500,000 In December.

Madrid.—Spain's population totals, according to the latest census returns, 23,500,000, being a slight decrease as compared with the census of December 31, 1930, which showed a total of 23,817,179, whereas the figure for 1920 was 21,338,381 and for 1900: 18,607,674. The most closely settled provinces are Barcelona with 1,800,000 (1,745,325 in 1920) and Madrid with 1,300,000 (1,231,487 in 1920).—Kuo-min.

British Lack of Push

Finnish Market Neglected.

Helsingfors.
Caustic remarks on British exports' inefficiency in pushing trade with Finland are made by the Finnish—British Trade Association here.

Their principal charges are that "the British do not show sufficient activity in introducing their products and making them known to Finnish buyers" and that they do not send their travellers regularly to Finland to study the local market requirements. "Nor, they contend, are British firms sufficiently willing to consider the buyers' demands. Particularly annoying to the Finns is the custom of some British firms of selling to Finland through agents living in Sweden and Denmark. W. J. Carroll. Her dress, which was a copy of Schiaparelli's collection of bridal dresses, was made of ivory coloured chiffon velvet, cut on the bias with a soft neckline, with long train, executed by Mme. Garnett. She carried a bouquet of white heather, which was sent out from England by the bridegroom's parents, and which was tied with the Cameron tartan. The only jewellery worn by the bride was a brooch, a personal gift from Mrs. Grant Cameron.

FAMOUS PIANIST PASSES.

Vladimir Pachmann Dies In Rome.

Rome, To-day.
The death has occurred, from pneumonia, of the famous pianist, Mr. Vladimir Pachmann.

Vladimir de Pachmann was born in Odessa in 1843, and has been described as one of the greatest exponents of Chopin's music. He has played in most of the European capitals and was awarded the gold medal for piano playing at the Vienna Conservatoire.

EUROPEANS HELP IN HUNT FOR ROBBERS

Mr. J. Barrow, 3 Others Search Hillside.

ARTIST ROBBED OF OVERCOAT

Mr. J. Barrow, the Civil Service cricketer and formerly Private Secretary to H.E. the Governor, together with Messrs. E. Waldorf, L. Haldane and T. Conale, all of Peking Road, Kowloon, took part in a hunt for three armed highway robbers on the Taiipo Road yesterday evening, after a young Chinese artist and his sister had been robbed.

Ng Sing-man, aged 28 years, residing at No. 89, Taiipo Road, described the affair in a report to the Police. He stated that he was walking with his younger sister, Ng Hoi-man in the direction of Mongkok, at about 6 p.m. When the third milestone was reached, they were attracted by the sound of people running behind them.

One of the three Chinese robbers, seized hold of the artist by the collar of his overcoat, while a sharp pointed instrument was pointed to his face. A second robber relieved him of his overcoat, while the third man pushed the artist's sister away from him. These two robbers were armed with a dagger each.

The three men ran up the hillside in the direction of Shatin.

The victims stopped a passing car, which was being driven by Mr. J. Barrow, First Clerk at the Central Magistracy, and told him what had happened. Together with three other Europeans, Mr. Barrow scoured the hillside, but could find no trace of the robbers. Later Police picked up a file dagger at the scene of the robbery.

Mr. Barrow went with the victims to the Mongkok Taul Police Station.

FIRE OUTBREAK IN TOWN CENTRE

A small chimney fire broke out this afternoon in a Chinese printing shop in Welling Street. The Hong Kong Fire Brigade despatched one engine which extinguished the fire within a few minutes.

The Emergency Unit were also on the scene shortly afterwards, and were busily employed holding back the crowd.

According to a report made by Mr. V. Harman, to the Police, thieves broke into the Rawlins Silk Store, Nathan Road, yesterday evening, and decimated with 400000 of silk stockings valued at $120.

WARLORDS PROMISE TO FIGHT

JAPANESE QUIET AT SHANHAIKUAN

NEW NAVY MINISTER AT TOKYO

(From Our Own Correspondent).

SHANGHAI, TO-DAY.

PENDING FURTHER INDICATION OF JAPANESE INTENTIONS IN NORTH CHINA, THE SITUATION IN REGARD TO THE SHANHAIKUAN INCIDENT SHOWS LITTLE CHANGE, AND NO FURTHER FIGHTING IS REPORTED. A STIFFENING OF CHINESE OPINION IS EVIDENT AND PROMINENT LEADERS HAVE DECLARED THAT THEY WILL RESIST FURTHER JAPANESE AGGRESSION.

Although Japanese troops are fortifying Shanhaikuan there is no indication of an immediate invasion of Peiping or Tientsin, and some quarters interpret the Japanese move as one directed against Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang for the purpose of checking his support of the Volunteers in Manchuria.

The only event of significance in Tokyo is the replacement of Navy Minister Okada by Admiral Osumi, thus renewing the Araki-Osumi combination which dictated Japan's militarist policy during the Shanghai hostilities.

Chang Intends To Resist

(From Our Own Correspondent).

Peking, Yesterday.

General Chang Hsueh-liang has stated that he intends to resist the Japanese advance. In an interview with the foreign and Chinese press, he said that the only means of gaining a satisfactory settlement to the Sino-Japanese dispute, was by offering a bitter resistance to the Japanese forces.

"If Japan aimed only at me, the question would be easy to solve, but since the country does not belong to me I have decided to resist the Japanese advance," he said.

Tsai Ting-kai Ready To Fight

A welcome party to General Chiu Yat-kin, Chief of Staff of the 19th Route Army, General Chan Man-lun, Commander of the Naval and Air Forces of Fukien and Mr. Choong Wai-yat, Superintendent of Customs at Amoy, was given by the South China Athletic Association, yesterday.

The distinguished guests arrived from Amoy yesterday and were met at the wharf by members of the S.C.A.A.

At the party, General Chiu made an optimistic speech regarding the position in the North, and added that General Tsai Ting-kai has notified Marshal Chiang Kai-shek of his willingness to participate in the anti-Japanese campaign.

Soviet Sceptical.

Moscow.
The revival of military operations at Shanhaikuan has caused but little surprise to the Soviet press which has predicted such a development for the past few weeks, disregarding all Japanese statements to the contrary.

In featuring this fresh outbreak of Sino-Japanese warfare the newspapers now in China profess scepticism regarding the Japanese protestations that no advance into Jehol is contemplated, and forecast the early widening of the new battlefield.

Though these events are being watched with intense interest, little comment prevails as Soviet interests are not affected to the extent as by the guerilla warfare in Northern Manchuria.—Kuo-min.

Admiral Osumi New Navy Minister.

Tokyo, To-day.
Admiral Osumi, who was the Navy Minister in the Inukai

Cabinet, has formally accepted the portfolio of Navy Minister in succession to Admiral Okada, who is resigning on account of ill health.—Reuter.

CIVILIANS KILLED AND WOUNDED

Shanhaikuan Merely A Wreck.

JAPANESE PLANNED EVENT LONG AHEAD.

Fuller details of the fighting at Shanhaikuan are now available with the arrival of Kuo Min press reports in Hong Kong this morning. Extracts are given below:—
The city has been terribly battered by the fire from the heavy artillery of the Japanese military and the shells from the Japanese gunboats. The airplanes dropped bombs indiscriminately.

The Chinese civilian population have suffered heavily in killed and wounded; and the damage to houses and property is so considerable that Shanhaikuan is now merely a wreck.

STOP PRESS

TOKYO HOPEFUL OF PEACE

Tokyo, To-day.

Both the War Office and the Foreign Office appear hopeful that the Shanhaikuan affair does not develop.

The War Office reiterates that Japan has no intention of embarking on major operations and, ridicules the reports that Japan is planning to invade North China through Shanhaikuan for the purpose of making a sweeping movement to attack Jehol.—Reuter.

Lord Hanworth, Master of the Rolls, celebrated his 71st birthday last month.—(S. & G.)

REVOLT IN BARCELONA

Police Shot, And Many Workers Killed.

London, To-day.
It is learned from Port Bou on the Franco-Spanish frontier, that Barcelona is in a state of revolt. Police and workers have been in fierce conflict since yesterday evening.

Details are not available but it is stated that several members of the police have been shot, and a number of workers including women, killed. Outbreak Quelled.

Madrid, Later.
The outbreak at Barcelona is reported to have been quelled after Anarchists had attempted to take possession of all the principal public buildings, causing large forces of police and military to be called out after numerous bombs had exploded.—Reuter.

POLITICAL UNREST IN GERMANY

Abolition Of Reich Commissary Urged.

VON SCHLEICHER CONFERS WITH DR. BRAUN.

Berlin.
Considerable importance is being attached in political circles here to a forthcoming interview between Chancellor von Schleicher and the Prussian titular Premier, Herr Otto Braun. The meeting is expected to have a decisive bearing on the political developments.

According to the press the discussion will centre on the question of an election of a new Prussian Premier by a majority in the Diet. The Chancellor is reported to be anxious to bring to an end the present rule by a Reich commissary, as it is giving rise to much discontent. Herr von Schleicher is furthering (Continued on Page 7.)

CHEKIANG POST

Nanking, To-day.
It is learned from reliable sources that General Wang Chao-hing, Minister of Home Affairs, will shortly be appointed Chairman of the Chekiang Provincial Government.

30 INJURED IN DUBLIN AGITATION

Stones And Iron Bars Freely Used.

SHOTS FIRED AS CROWDS GET OUT OF HAND.

Dublin, To-day.

The electoral campaign is carrying on to the accompaniment of considerable disorder. Numerous free fights have occurred in various centres and many casualties are reported.

The first outbreak occurred during a Nationalist meeting in Dublin, when agitators in the huge crowd commenced their activities. In the space of a few moments, the crowd was in an uproar, and the police had great difficulty in subduing the brawl. Thirty people were injured and several arrests were made.

A more serious outbreak followed soon after, when at a meeting at Ballinacorney, Co. Sligo, violent scenes were witnessed when the crowd got out of hand. In the fierce fight that ensued, five people were removed to hospital in an unconscious condition.

The trouble arose between the White Army and a hostile element. Stones and iron bars were freely used, and shots were fired among the crowd, in an effort to quell the outbreak.

Other minor clashes have been reported in various canvassing centres, and both police and military are closely watching all electoral meetings.—Reuter.

OVERSEAS MODEL CORPS

Training College At Loyang.

General Li Fook-lum, a former commander of the Fourth Army in Canton, who was recently invited by General Chiang Kai-shek to organize an Overseas Model Corps, arrived from Shanghai yesterday by the S.S. Tiflis.

General Li, interviewed by the China Mail, said that his resignation, submitted to the Government just before this invitation, was refused because of the difficulty of finding a reliable organizer for the Model Corps.

He also stated that the Overseas Chinese had helped considerably towards making the Corps possible by providing the ammunition and other necessities.

The training college will be situated at Loyang in Honan Province, while all operations will be planned from either Nanking or Shanghai.

HOT AND COLD SANDWICHES.

New Mixtures Worth Trying.

Sandwiches ought to be renamed, such an impression of dryness and desolation do they convey. This is not in the least necessary and depends in part upon the bread chosen, but also upon sufficiency of the inside. A party with supper of a modest kind may well start with sausages, hot and frizzling, and buried in a small, soft roll. This can easily be obtained from the baker, and it should be hollowed out a little to contain the sausage. The "chaudroid" effect is pleasing and surprising. Hot Welsh rabbit sandwiches are also agreeable to those who have been expecting nothing but ham from which the bread has curled away in sheer dryness and the acidulated potentialities of weak lemonade.

It is often worth buying something a little startling for sandwiches. Salmon of good quality is tasty, and a little goes a long way. Lobster—it may have been caught in a tin—pounded up so that it does not emerge in lumps, and mixed with mayonnaise, also fills a sandwich well. Creamy mixtures generally give a pleasing moistness, and in them can be mixed such trifles as nuts and celery carefully minced, but not so finely that they no longer scrunch. Nuts flavour a good many things to advantage, and the hostess may use her ingenuity in combining them variously with beetroot, pates, cheese, and so forth. Anything hot at a "cold" supper provides a surprise of its own. Hot tongue sandwiches and hot bacon sandwiches are also a pleasing change. Change is, after all, the main thing, and a change from dry bread and insipid, staid ham or chicken is not difficult to compass.

Polished copper articles, such as stove ornaments, boxes, clocks and so on, which have become tarnished can be restored by brushing the surface with a soft hair brush dipped in strong vinegar. The articles should be washed thoroughly in water and fried with sawdust. Another method which obviates the use of vinegar employs in its place soapy water in which ordinary washing soda has been dissolved.

GIRL'S DIZZY WALK ACROSS BROADWAY.

Desperate Need For Work Related.

New York. Broadway was startled one afternoon recently by the spectacle of a girl walking across it on 1,000 feet of wire stretched at a height of 300 feet.

Immediately she had negotiated her perilous feat, she was arrested and hurried to a police station where she was charged with endangering the lives of people in the street.

Giving the name of Miss Tiny Kline, aged 26, she said she had taken this "spectacular" means of calling attention to the unemployed.

STRANGE PETS OF WEST END.

Lions Among Fads of Fashionable.

Cheetahs, mongeese, ring-tailed lemurs, foxes, cockatoos, marmosets, baby alligators, macaws and small lions all have been, or still are, pets in West End drawing-rooms. Monkeys are almost as common as dogs, and porcupines, leopards, newts, eagles, beetles and turtles have answered the call of Society women.

Now, however, the prime favourite seems to be the common or garden frog. It has been discovered that a really affectionate frog makes a very great appeal, and these pets are economical to keep, both as regards space and feeding.

Pets in these days must harmonise with household decorations, and chameleons, therefore, are also popular. "It's so convenient, my dear, to have a pet that changes its colour to blend with the spot it happens to be on!"

BOOK REVIEW

"The Alternative to Communism," by G. Pape.—At Cecil Paine's; price 2/6. 125 pages.

This is a new Crusade—declares the author. Crusade against the three enemies of civilisation: unemployment, war and communism. In order to defeat this three-headed dragon, Mr. Pape suggests the foundation of a New Political Fellowship (non party), any member of the N.P.F. offering "his own personal labour of Head, Heart and Hand, so that with others of like mind, he shall be organised, locally, nationally and internationally . . . this individual assent being an antidote to unemployment, war and communism."

Once this organisation realised, human civilisation: Education, Art and Music will develop and their development will produce "active race harmony." A vast co-operation is needed to carry out this utopia of a happier and more beautiful future of humanity.

The first step to take is a re-organisation of our educational system; the schools must become "international, co-educational, self-governing." We are in need of a healthy and happy new generation, always willing to help his neighbour in the spirit of the N.P.F.

Besides the essays of Mr. A. G. Pape, "The Alternative to Communism" contains a Symposium, on the general subject "Constructive and Co-operative Citizenship." The articles are written by Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, (Wanted: a Man with a Plan), by Miss Esson Maule (The Political Evolution of Women), by the Rt. Hon. George Lansbury M.P., further: The Need for Parliamentary Reform by Arthur Kitson, who requires a certain qualification for future M.P.'s, stating that "piloting the Ship of State is surely a far more important and more difficult task than that of steering an Atlantic liner." Mr. Kitson also pretends that the present political leaders failed because of their education in old and out-of-date doctrines of orthodox and pre-war schools. Lord Tavistock writes about the "Essentials of a Sound Economical Policy." Brig-General R. B. D. Blakeney, D.S.O. requires a "Resultant Practical Policy" and C. Jinarajadasa explains his ideas about "God's Party."

"The Alternative to Communism" is concluded by some final deductions of Mr. Pape; he explains the right attitude of the ideal member as of the New Political Fellowship and praises the best form of government: the Self-Government. Finally the essentials of the N.P.F. are recapitulated in 7 points and followed by a "call to all Wise Patriots, to join the Fellowship, 'such will get on with the job.'"

IVAN THE TERRIBLE.

(By Stephen Graham. (Benn 18/-).)

We do not recommend this book to those with weak nerves or to persons who suffer from nightmare, for Mr. Graham spares the reader few horrors as he tells his tale of murder, rape, torture and gigantic massacres. Yet shocking as the recital is, we are not told the worst as the author more than once, as if himself sickened, informs us that he leaves the rest to be imagined.

Ivan IV, later surnamed the Terrible, was born in 1530 when Russia was beginning to emerge from barbarism. Some students of history will say the emergence is not yet completed. Bred in an atmosphere of suspicion, tyranny, superstition and cruelty, Ivan, as a youth, showed that he could out-tartar the Tartars in the refinement and scale of his cruelties, and at the age of eighteen we find him applying oil and setting fire to the heads and long beards of an embassy. Then came a change. He married the saint-like Anastasia who, marvellous to relate, restrained his blood-lust for thirteen years. After her death Ivan seems to have gone mad, out-doing Nero, Caligula and Heliogabalus in his megalomaniacal excesses. He suspected everyone, slaughtered and tortured wholesale, and, as in the case of Novgorod, massacred over fifty thousand innocent citizens and gloated over their agonies for no better reason than a groundless suspicion. Yet he was not wholly mad. Between his fits of cruelty and religion he was a cold, calculating statesman, and by conquering Kazan began the long process of Russianising the Caspian region and driving the Mohammedans from Europe. Though not quite so successful in securing a Baltic port for Europe he prepared the way, here as in other directions, for Peter the Great.

This volume, which should be read along with and before the same author's "Peter the Great," is a psychological study revealing Russian fatalism and the why and wherefore of much that seems perplexing in Muscovite history. But, right attitude of the ideal member as of the New Political Fellowship and praises the best form of government: the Self-Government. Finally the essentials of the N.P.F. are recapitulated in 7 points and followed by a "call to all Wise Patriots, to join the Fellowship, 'such will get on with the job.'"

"A STUDY IN CREATURE HISTORY."

"The Interaction of Eastern and Western Peoples to 500 B.C." by O. E. Burton M.A. (N.Z.) (pub. George Allen and Unwin Ltd., 10/6.)

In the Preface and Foreword of this admirable book the author says:—

"The writer has aimed at producing a work which will enable the serious reader to get a reasonably clear comprehension of the main movements of thought as they emerge clearly into history. No attempt has been made to deal with any thinking that cannot be demonstrated by reference to authenticated source manuscripts."

"In the opinion of the writer the outstanding developments prior to 500 B.C. were the emergence of the Prophetic school in Israel, of Mazdism in Persia, of Brahminism and, subsequently, Buddhism in India, and of Confucianism in China."

"Throughout, the attempt has been made to select such themes as are of importance to subsequent interaction. . . . The writer believes that at about 500 B.C. the stage was set for international action. What has happened since and what is happening to-day is largely conditioned by the philosophies of life that had been worked out by that date."

"This book aims, above everything else, at setting out in clear form the ideas formulated by ancient schools of thought which are either of definite influence on men and affairs to-day, or which have profoundly influenced other major philosophies that have emerged since 500 B.C."

This most interesting book comes from New Zealand. It is said that, with no bombast nor any silly talk of "hundred per cent. he-men," the New Zealanders intend to become the white race of the future. They made a fine start by achieving the lowest infantile death rate in the world. Now intelligent people with sturdy bodies are worth developing, but unless there is something more, something greater, some touch with the past they can only degenerate into self-conscious "uplift" and disastrous sentimentality.

If "A Study in Creature History" is a fair sample of New Zealand's scholarship and of the spirit behind New Zealand's development we of the Old Country need not worry. The torch passes into capable hands.

IN HONOUR OF HAUPTMANN.

State Stipend For Creative Writers.

Berlin.

The Gerhart Hauptmann celebrations attending the poet's seventieth birthday found their climax in the announcement that the Prussian State has decided to award an annual Gerhart Hauptmann stipend to one or more literary men whose struggle to live through the period of their creative work should be lightened at least for the period of twelve months.

These awards will only be made with the consent of Hauptmann himself. Private circles have already subscribed the amount of fifty thousand marks (£2,500 at par). Hauptmann expressed himself as more than delighted with this birthday gift, more even than by the award of the official gold medal for services rendered to the state, which militarist Prussia has awarded to art or letters only once before. This first recipient was Max Liebermann, the eighty-year-old painter.

The tragedy-comedy of the present dual government in Prussia has never been so clearly revealed as in the fact that both the man in actual power, Dr. Bracht, set up as Commissioner by Herr von Papen in the name of the central government of the Reich, and Otto Braun, Premier of the deposed, but legally still existing government, together with his Minister of Culture, sent Hauptmann the official parchment document announcing the award of the state medal. But the state seal was upon that signed by Dr. Bracht only. This was also accompanied by the medal. The Otto Braun government expressed its feelings by attending the Hauptmann play at the People's Theatre instead of that at the State Theatre on the birthday night. Hauptmann himself tactfully divided his time between both performances.

High Prices Paid At London Sale.

High prices were realized at Sotheby's Rooms yesterday, when a number of manuscript and presentation copies of the works of Lewis Carroll (C. L. Dodgson), the property of his sister, the late Miss Louisa F. Dodgson, came under the hammer. The bidding throughout the sale was of a most spirited character. Some 40 items produced the satisfactory total of £1,042. The chief lot, The Rectory Magazine, an unpublished manuscript of 116 pages, written by Dodgson at the age of 18, made £370 (Mags).

Three pen and ink sketches by Dodgson for "Sylvie and Bruno" made £27; a picture-book written and drawn by him when nine years of age realized £42; and one of the four known copies of the Guildford Gazette extraordinary fell to a bid of £50. Other Lewis Carroll first editions included "Through the Looking Glass" and "The Hunting of the Snark," both inscribed by the author, each realizing £40; while £60 was given for a presentation copy of "Sylvie and Bruno." On the other hand a bid of only five guineas was forthcoming for the couch and easy chair used by Dodgson in his rooms at Christchurch.

There was exceptionally keen bidding for a copy of Kingsley's "Water Babies," 1863, inscribed "To my Darling Wife—C. Kingsley," the property of his daughter. It realized the record price of £118.

Other items which contributed to an afternoon's total of £2,853 included the manuscript of Kingsley's "Our Lady of the Snows," first published in The Times on April 27, 1897, which made £90; and a long series of over 950 letters from Robert Southey to Horace and Governor Bedford, for which £106 was given.

BAILEY'S THRILLER ON MARKET.

Complication of Plot Skilful.

The Red Castle, by H. C. Bailey, has just been published.

Mr. Bailey's name as an acceptable writer of detective fiction has come to be associated with that prince of detectives, the chubby-faced Mr. Fortune, and the lover of that class of literature might be inclined to regret the fact that Mr. Fortune is missing from this latest novel. He need have no fear. Superintendent Bell, Mr. Fortune's coadjutor, is here, and with him Mr. Clunk, that hymn-singing lover of sweetmeats and defender of the criminal classes, who in his previous appearance in Mr. Bailey's pages proved himself quite as able a detector of the criminal as ever was Mr. Fortune.

To tell the plot of a detective story is but poor service to the author, and it must suffice to say that in this book Mr. Bailey has lost none of his skill in complications, while that pretty humour which makes all the difference between enjoyment and boredom in the thriller is here in full measure.

"FIREMAN, SAVE MY CHILD"—QUEEN'S THEATRE.

A splendid mixture of slapstick and light comedy makes "Fireman, Save My Child," Joe E. Brown's latest film now showing at the Queen's Theatre an excellent laugh-producer. The wide-mouthed comedian's humour is original, and with the help of this fast, shapely story he is seen at his best in a role which allows him full scope to display his strange antics.

It is the story of "Smoky" Joe Grant, assistant fire chief in a small American town. But Joe is more than a firefighter; he is also a crack baseball pitcher. Yet every time he hears a fire siren he drops the ball to rush off to the scene. Eventually his fame spreads so far that he is signed on to play for St. Louis.

"THE TRIAL OF VIVIANNE WARE"—KING'S THEATRE.

Dramatic and thrilling is "The Trial of Vivienne Ware," the Fox production, now showing at the King's Theatre.

"The Trial of Vivienne Ware" concerns a beautiful society girl who finds herself on trial for the murder of a millionaire architect who had been her fiancé.

Joan Bennett demonstrates her exceptional ability as a dramatic actress in the role of the prosecuted girl. As the hardboiled district attorney, Allan Dinehart is perfectly cast. His work is an outstanding feature of the production. Donald Cook as the attorney for the defense is natural and convincing. Julian Bond, in the role of the night club entertainer, is appealing to eye and ear.

"PEACH O' RENO"—CENTRAL THEATRE.

Bert Wheeler plays the role of a gay young woman in RKO-Radio now showing at the Central Pictures. "Peach O' Reno," which is Theatre, with his starring partner in comedy, Robert Woolsey. "Peach O' Reno" is a unique burlesque satirizing the Reno divorce colony and demonstrates how lucrative can be the business of two enterprising young lawyers who advertise perfectly legal and satisfactory divorces for $50 and no questions asked. William A. Seitor directed the picture.

"THE MAN THEY COULDN'T ARREST"—STAR THEATRE.

The British first-class thriller "The Man They Couldn't Arrest" with Hugh Wakefield in the leading role, is now showing at the Star Theatre. Gordon Barker, Nicholas Banner and Renee Clama also fill important roles. There are thrills aplenty, and the film depicts a detective's unique method of tracking down a gang of dangerous criminals.

MAIL REVIEW

"A NIGHT LIKE THIS"—MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Ralph Lynn and Tom Walls have the leading roles in "A Night Like This" now showing at the Majestic Theatre.

The story takes place in London on a foggy night with Tom Walls directing traffic in the Strand. He receives a note, from Joan Brierley which explained that the secret gambling in the Moonstone Night Club, was going strong. Winifred Shotter does good work as the cabaret beauty.

"WOMEN OF ALL NATIONS"—ORIENTAL THEATRE.

Fox's amusing film presentation "Women of All Nations" is the current attraction at the Oriental Theatre. The cast is headed by two favourites, Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, and they are supported by Greta Nissen and El Brendel. The story tells of the adventures of "American" marines travelling round the world.

LESSON SERMON.

First Church of Christ, Scientist—Hong Kong.

"Sacrament" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, January 8th.

The Golden Text was: "To do good and to communicate forget not; for with such sacrifices God is well pleased." (Hebr. 13:16).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the passover must be killed. And he sent Peter and John, saying, Go and prepare us the passover, that we may eat. . . . And they went, and found as he had said unto them: and they made ready the passover. And when the hour was come, he sat down; and the twelve apostles with him. . . . And he said unto them, With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer: For I say unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the Kingdom of God." (Luke 22: 7, 8, 13-16).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook: "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our baptism is a purification from all error; Our church is built on the divine Principle, Love; Our Eucharist is spiritual communion with the one God; Our bread, which is the one God, is the bread of life; Our cup is the cross; Our wine the inspiration of Love; the draught our Master drank and commended to his followers." (P. 35.) of Rizal.

Germany's Future.

The report that in Germany there is a sentiment in favour of the restoration of the monarchy, perhaps in a modified form, is quite plausible, although recent cables have given little mention of Royalist rumours. Many Germans, faithful to the Republic in theory, must wistfully remember the stability and prosperity which they enjoyed under the Empire up to its closing phase, and which they have exchanged for the present uncertainties. Men as dissimilar in type as Signor Mussolini and Mr. Henry Ford have asserted that the average person does not particularly care about the precise system of government by which he is ruled as long as it provides security and an opportunity to earn a livelihood. Germany looks back upon a series of elections, Reich and State, which have failed to yield a conclusive verdict, have reduced the Reichstag to impotence, and have resulted in the suspension of guarantees. At the best, frequent elections are upsetting, and confusion is worse confounded when, as they have been in Germany, they are accompanied by outbreaks of violence in which innocent citizens in the vicinity of the affairs are injured. President von Hindenburg, with his immense prestige, has been a firm bulwark of the Republic. But he has reached an age when he must soon lay aside office. There appears to be no outstanding figure in the political scene marked out as his natural successor, and for this reason it has been suggested that his retirement might be an apt moment for a Hohenzollern to offer himself, making the Presidency a stepping-stone for the return of the dynasty. There are further possibilities, which make Germany's future problematical. Several of the members composing the Reich are finding the protracted political deadlock so irksome that the plan of withdrawal is advocated among them. An association — as is the Republic — acceptable when Germany's star was in the ascendant, may lose its advantages in altered circumstances. The unity of the German people is nowadays taken for granted, but the assumption can be carried too far. The Reich has not the cohesiveness born of historical tradition and affinity of character. The people of the North and South differ entirely in temperament. The separatist movement in the Rhineland, fostered by the French, has died down since their evacuation of the occupied area, but it has still adherents. The Southern States, Bavaria especially, resent Prussia's hegemony in the partnership. That Prussia should exercise a dominating influence is inevitable. Prussia comprises almost two-thirds of Germany's territory, and three-fifths of Germany's population. In the Reichstag, the Chamber representing the States as such, Prussia has twenty-six seats out of a total of sixty-six; Bavaria, next on the list, has to be content with ten. The States have suffered disabilities to which they were not subject under the Empire. For example, in 1920, all their railways were transferred to the central Government. This was held to be necessary in order to make their revenues readily accessible for the payment of reparations. But the Southern States feel that their individuality is gradually being submerged. The German Empire, from its establishment in 1871 to its supersession by the Republic, had a career of less than fifty years, and it was not a spontaneous growth. For centuries "Germany" was merely a geographical expression, being made up of a congeries of independent and occasionally hostile units. The creation of the Empire was preceded by more or less loose confederations, brought about chiefly by the sword. In 1866, during the Austro-Prussian war, many of the German States took the side of Austria, and were defeated in battle by Prussia. Some of them were then annexed by Prussia; the remainder north of the Main were required to enter a North German confederation. This development came to pass, as Bismarck had predicted, "not by speeches and majority votes, but by blood and iron." From this arrangement the Southern States were excluded. Five years later, after the victory over France, the Empire was proclaimed. At the time few were aware of the difficulty with which the final step had been won, or the reluctance with which King Louis of Bavaria signed the letter conveying the proposal to his brother princes. A letter written by the hand of Bismarck. Thereafter, the Empire presented an aspect of unshakable solidarity. But, with the Parliamentary system in danger of breaking down, radical amendments to the Constitution projected, and the tide of Communism rising, it is not easy to picture what the future has in store for Germany.

University Politics.
Neither the meeting of a club of Communist tendencies nor its dispersal has any bearing on the progress of political thought at Oxford. Such incidents are constantly recurring.

The correct procedure for breaking up a meeting was laid down by Sir Hamilton Grant when he was an undergraduate at Balliol. With a party of friends he came upon a meeting with whose politics he did not agree. He told the meeting that they should be ashamed of themselves and go home. They refused.

Then he told them that he had constituted himself the civil authority, and proceeded to read what he said was the Riot Act. Still the meeting persisted.

"Very well," said Sir Hamilton, "I must have recourse to the military. I now constitute myself Commander of the Military Forces available, and call on myself and my troops to disperse you."

Which they did.

THE DOMINIONS' MOST ILL-USED MANWARREN HASTINGS: THE
MAN WHO SAVED INDIA

HIS FINANCIAL REFORM

(By SIR JOHN MARRIOTT).

"The most ill-used man in the Dominions of the Crown." With these words the Prince Regent presented Warren Hastings to the Allied Sovereigns, statesmen and soldiers when they visited England in 1814.

Does any person, whose knowledge of Hastings extends beyond Macaulay's famous Essay, to-day doubt that the words were accurate and most happily inspired?

"I think," wrote a well-known politician of his own day, "that he was a man of the most powerful mind I ever conversed with."

Modern research, throwing off the spell cast over an earlier generation by the eloquence of Burke, and Macaulay—two of the greatest rhetoricians who ever used the English tongue—has more and more tended to confirm that judgment.

Rivals in India.

Warren Hastings was born at Churchill, an Oxfordshire village, three miles from Daylesford, on December 6, 1732. He went as a child to the village school, but in 1747 he was elected, first on the roll, to a scholarship at Westminster. If the Headmaster had had his way the promising scholar might have ended his days as an Oxford don.

Fortunately for the British Empire the wisdom of schoolmasters is occasionally overruled by Providence. In this case the immediate instrument of Providence was a "hard-hearted guardian," who took the boy prematurely away from school, obtained for him a clerkship in the East India Company, and shipped off his troublesome charge to Calcutta, to make his way, or to die, as Fate might decide.

Warren Hastings landed in 1750; he bade farewell to India, as Governor-General of Bengal, in 1785.

When Hastings first went out, the English company was only one of several European companies which in the course of the preceding century had established themselves as traders in India. Nor was it the greatest. Thanks to the genius of Dupleix, the prestige of the French company was much higher than that of the English or any other company.

When, thirty-five years later, Hastings finally left India the English company was not merely far ahead of all European rivals in the East, but was on the high road to paramountcy over the whole sub-continent from Cape Comorin to the Himalayas.

British Supremacy.

This marvellous transformation, effected in a single generation, was primarily the work of one man, Robert, Lord Clive had, indeed, laid the foundations, and had made the English company practically masters of Bengal.

Warren Hastings made it the first Power in India. Much remained to be done, and was done, by great rulers like Cornwallis and Wellesley, Lord Hastings and Dalhousie, and when in 1858 Queen Victoria took over from a company of merchants the great estate, it had acquired she became not merely the direct and unchallenged Sovereign of the greater part of India, but paramount over the whole sub-continent.

Good merchants, as Adam Smith pointed out, make bad princes; the extension of sovereignty does not tend to promote commercial success. But while the Company was on the verge of bankruptcy its ill-paid servants were amassing fortunes. Hastings's first task when in power at the age of 40 (his own hands were always clean) was to eradicate this canker of corruption.

Financial reform is never popular; Hastings made many enemies, but he went on his way unheeding. He was saddled with a Council which could and did perpetually thwart his plans and override his authority.

Genius and Courage.

The work accomplished was colossal in magnitude. It can, however, be fully appreciated only if set forth in detail impossible within the limits assigned to me. When Hastings left India the Company had become sovereign of a great province in North-Eastern India and of relatively small patches of territory in the extreme South of the peninsula. The area of territorial expansion had hardly begun. Yet Hastings had prepared the way for the great work accomplished by his successors.

In the middle of the eighteenth century the condition of India under many rulers was chaotic. Lord Macaulay compared the situation to that of Europe after the death of Charlemagne. Perhaps a closer parallel may be found in the condition of China to-day.

From that situation India was rescued by the genius and courage of Warren Hastings. And let it be remembered that his work in India was done at the moment when England was fighting (1775-1783) that disastrous war which lost us our first Colonial Empire in America. Warren Hastings saved India. What would have happened to India had he not been there it is idle (though interesting) to speculate.

In 1784 Pitt passed his India Bill—another stage towards direct Imperial responsibility; in 1785 Hastings returned to England.

The Whigs were bent on his ruin. At Burke's instance the House of Commons impeached him on twenty charges, framed chiefly on information supplied by Philip Francis, his most malignant enemy.

Trial At Westminster.

The trial before the House of Lords lasted for seven years and three months; it ended at last (1795) in the acquittal of Hastings on every charge preferred against him. All the most brilliant orators of England—Burke, Sheridan and Fox—were his accusers. He emerged from the ordeal with his innocence triumphantly vindicated, but aged, broken, ruined.

He had returned from India a relatively poor man; his fortune was expended on his defence. He managed, indeed, to purchase the small Daylesford property for about £11,000, and the Company gave him a moderate pension. His last days till he died in his 86th year were accordingly spent in peace and honour.

POPULAR POLICE
OFFICER DEAD.Sergeant Williams
Passes Away At 29.

GOOD RECORD.

Lance-Sergeant Daniel Hill Williams, of the Hong Kong Police Force, died in the Victoria Hospital yesterday morning, at the comparatively early age of 29 years, following an attack of malaria complicated with pneumonia. The funeral takes place to-day at 5 p.m., when full Military honours will be accorded.

A native of County Down, Ireland, the deceased was a Lance Sergeant in the Irish Guards before he arrived in the Colony. In 1923, after enlistment in the local Police Force, he soon qualified as a Lewis and Thompson gunner. He passed his examinations in Hindustani and Cantonese, and within the first year of joining was promoted Lance Sergeant.

The Police tragedy at Lokmah-chau on July 29, 1930, when P.C. Dalip Singh ran amok at the Station and murdered the wife of Sergeant Madgwick was of peculiar concern to Sergeant Williams.

When ordered to enter the Station which was then being surrounded, and so without hesitation, well knowing that the man was armed.

Pluck Commanded.
For the pluck and zeal he displayed he was later commended by the Hon. Inspector General of Police.

The deceased was formerly attached to the C.I.D. and at the time of his death was connected with the Ballif's Office at the Supreme Court.

He was unmarried, and is survived by his father, Mr. Thomas Williams, a resident of Tasmul, Argyllshire.

Arrested during the week-end, Wong Yau, 24 of 18, Burke Street, Yaumatei district, was brought before Mr. Schofield in the Central Police Court this morning, charged in connection with the robbery at 519 the Peak, the residence of Mr. W. J. Waddington, Manager of the P. & O. Bank, when household property to the value of $150 was stolen.

An alternative charge of receiving was also brought against the accused, who was remanded for 48 hours.

Further investigations are proceeding.

POLITICAL UNREST IN GERMANY.

Thereafter said to be determined to get the Diet dissolved should it fail to reach an agreement on a new government.

Interest In Lippe.

Diet elections in the federal state of Lippe, in ordinary times hardly mentioned, are this time looked for with a good deal of interest as being the first elections in the New Year and also the first since the advent of the von Schleicher Cabinet.

The political truce having come to an end the election campaign began immediately, as election day, January 15, is near at hand.

The most elaborate preparations for this campaign were made by the National Socialists who have announced to their followers that they would stage "Special force-meetings as they were never seen, not only in Germany, but throughout the world."

Hitler himself opened the campaign and it is stated that until election day he will deliver at least one speech every day.

German Currency.

Owing to the increase of notes in circulation the cover ratio of the German currency declined during the last week of December from 27.2 to 25.8 per cent., according to the published official returns of the Reichsbank. Gold and foreign currency reserves increased slightly to 920,000,000 Marks.

The continuation of the economic crisis is reflected in the fact that, despite the seasonal increase, the total of the money in circulation is with 5,600,000,000 Marks, fully 1,000,000,000 Marks below the figure for the end of 1931.

EUROPEANS COMMITTED.

V. G. Cooks and P. Hill were committed to the House of Detention by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, pending arrangements for their departure. Defendants had served prison terms for stowing away from Durban, South Africa last month.

Sir Robert Ho Tung has consented to distribute the prizes at Queen's College on Friday, January 20 at 11.30 a.m.

SINCERE COMPANY'S CELEBRATION.*Anniversary Marked With Banquet.*NEW WANCHAI STORE.

The Sincere Company celebrated their 33rd anniversary with a banquet last night, which was attended by over 1,000 people, of whom 600 were members of the staff. A feature of the banquet was that at one table were seated 18 octogenarians, whose ages totalled 1,653 years! They were the guests of honour.

Mr. Choy Hing, Chairman of the Board of Directors, in a brief speech in Chinese, stated that the Sincere Company had grown from a capital of $25,000 to one of $14,000,000 at the present day.

Mr. Ma Man-fai, Managing Director, and Mr. Ma Ying-pu also spoke, the latter read messages of congratulations and good wishes from local honours and associations. A lady representative of the salesgirls employed by the firm in 1900, spoke, this being the first occasion in the history of the firm.

During the evening, the 22nd annual prize distribution of the Sincere Company night school took place, Mr. Li Yuk-tong giving away the prizes.

Mr. S. W. Pon, headmaster of the School, read the report after which the students sang the 'Sincere's School song.'

In commemoration of this anniversary, a new $1 store was opened at No. 167-169, Johnstone Road, Wanchai, yesterday.

"THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH."*Philharmonic Society's Presentation.*AT KING'S THEATRE.

"The Fountain of Youth," a comic opera composed by Alfred Reynolds and written by W. Graham Robertson, author of "Finkie and the Fairies," will be presented this month at the King's Theatre by the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society. The scene of the opera is laid in the country village of Yonville, and the first of the two acts opens with the celebration of the 30th anniversary of the wedding of Farmer and Mrs. Dalebrook. During the festivities Mr. Dalebrook tells the assembled villagers of the legend of "The Fountain of Youth," which was said to flow from a well in the village, the story asserting that to drink of the water would bring back youth.

With the discovery that the water has again commenced to flow, the excitement runs high, and the fun races on apace.

The tunes are simple and melodious, while the plot is full of amusing and ingenious surprises, and some of the best amateur talent in the Colony has been enlisted to provide the public with an exhilarating and merry evening's entertainment.

The dancing has been placed in the capable hands of Miss Winifred Henderson, and culminates with a special ballet in the 2nd Act which is composed of some of the members of Hong Kong's smart set.

Three evening performances are to be given at 9.30 p.m. on January 18, 20 and 21, and His Excellency the Governor, who is Patron of the Society has expressed his intention of attending the performance on the 20th. In addition, a matinee will be given at 4.45 p.m. on the 19th to which children will be admitted at half price to all seats.

It should be noted that the prices which are $3, $2 and $1, and 70 cents for Service men are all inclusive of tax, and further, what is believed to be an innovation for Hong Kong, all the seats in the house are bookable. Booking opens on Saturday, January 14, at the Theatre, and the public are requested to book early. They may be sure of spending an enjoyable evening.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair weather, with fresh north-easterly winds, is forecasted by the Royal Observatory in their weather report issued this morning.

The Lai Ching Arts Exhibition, which is being held on the roof garden of the Sincere Company, will not close until Wednesday next. Many of the paintings and embroidery works have been greatly admired by visitors.

PRETTY WEDDING IN CHAPEL*Mr. J. E. Henry And Miss E. Lammert United.*POPULAR COUPLE.

In the Chapel of St. John's Cathedral on Saturday afternoon, the Very Rev. A. Swann officiating, the wedding was quietly solemnised between Miss Eileen Joyce Lammert, youngest daughter of Mr. George Phillip Lammert, well-known local resident, and Mr. James Edward Henry, second son of Mr. Malcolm Henry, of Yokohama and Hong Kong, and local Manager of Reuters Limited. The ceremony was attended by relatives and intimate family friends.

The bride was given away by her father, and looked charming in a dress of peach-mastic Peau d'Ange, in Princess lines, with nun-like neck line, long tight sleeves with puffs at elbows. The veil of tulle, of same tone as the dress, depended from a close fitting cap of pearl. She also had a short train, and carried a bouquet of delicate pink roses.

Mr. G. P. Ferguson discharged the duties of best-man, while the bride's brother Mr. G. P. Lammert, the Interport rugby player, and Mr. Frank Lammert, cousin of the bride, were groomsmen.

Many friends and well-wishers gathered at the reception, which was held at 2, May Road, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lammert Dunbar. The happy couple later left for their honeymoon, which is being spent at Fanling.

The bride's travelling dress was a blue wool military style tailored suit, trimmed with round steel buttons. She wore a smart felt cloche hat with toute ensemble to match.

The bride's gift to the groom was a wrist watch, while that of the groom to the bride was a fur coat. The newly wedded couple also received many delightful presents.

The bridegroom is a popular member of the Hong Kong Hockey Club, and figured in their Sim Shield eleven some seasons ago.

FIRE OFFICER WEDS.

At St. Paul's Church on Saturday afternoon, the wedding was solemnised between Miss Mary Lee, a sister of Mr. Lee Yun-wing, and Mr. Chan Chuk-kwan, sub-officer at the Kowloon Fire Station. A reception was held after the ceremony at the Hotel Cecil Lounge, and a dinner was given at the To Yuen Restaurant last night. Many friends attended both functions.

PRETTY LOCAL WEDDING.

Mr. A. H. Carroll discharged the duties of best-man standing proxy for the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Ian Grant Cameron.

The groomsmen were Mr. Geoffrey Smith, who, together with Mrs. Smith, specially came out from California for the occasion. Messrs. L. F. Nicholson and N. S. Ellis were ushers.

Lohengrin's "Wedding March" was played at the service.

Subsequently, a reception was held at the Hong Kong Hotel, where many friends gathered and honoured the customary toasts with enthusiasm. The wedding cake decorations consisted of silver bells and acorns, while a heather horse shoe as well as the top tier of the cake were sent out by Mrs. Grant Cameron.

The honeymoon is being spent in Macao, the bride's travelling dress being of wine coloured morocain.

WOMAN INJURED IN NATHAN ROAD.*Attempted To Alight From Moving Bus.

What might have resulted in a very nasty accident took place last night in Nathan Road, when a Eurasian lady Mrs. McCabe, walked out of a moving bus and was thrown heavily, sustaining a bruised forehead and lacerated lips.

The lady boarded the bus, at Peking Road, but soon got up and without motioning that she wanted the bus to stop, stepped off. The bus was stopped immediately and an ambulance from the Kowloon Hospital summoned.

A Great Sherlock Holmes Story.

The Adventure of SILVER BLAZE

By Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

"I AM AFRAID, Watson, that I shall have to go," said Holmes, as we sat down together to our breakfast one morning.

"Go! Where to?"

"To Dartmoor—to King's Pyland."

I was not surprised. Indeed, my only wonder was that he had not already been mixed up in this extraordinary case, which was the one topic of conversation through the length and breadth of England. For a whole day my companion had rambled about the room with his chin upon his chest and his brows knitted, charging and recharging his pipe with the strongest black tobacco, and absolutely deaf to any of my questions or remarks. Fresh editions of every paper had been sent up by our news-agent only to be glanced over and tossed down into a corner. Yet, silent as he was, I knew perfectly well what it was over which he was brooding. There was but one problem before the public which could challenge his powers of analysis, and that was the singular disappearance of the favourite for the Wessex Cup and the tragic murder of its trainer. When, therefore, he suddenly announced his intention of setting out for the scene of the drama it was only what I had both expected and hoped for.

"I should be most happy to go down with you if I should not be in the way," said I.

"My dear Watson, you would confer a great favour upon me by coming. And I think that your time will not be mis-spent, for there are points about this case which promise to make it an absolutely unique one. We have, I think, just time to catch our train at Paddington, and I will go further into the matter upon our journey. You would oblige me by bringing with you your very excellent field-glass."

And so it happened that an hour or so later I found myself in the corner of a first-class carriage, flying along, en route for Exeter, while Sherlock Holmes, with his sharp, eager face framed in his ear-flapped travelling cap, dipped rapidly into the bundle of fresh papers which he had procured at Paddington. We had left Reading far behind us before he thrust the last of them under the seat and offered me his cigar-case.

"We are going well," said he, looking out of the window, and glancing at his watch. "Our rate

BISHOP VISITS ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.*Welcome Extended At Social.

The Rt. Rev. Ronald Owen Hall, Bishop of Victoria, paid his first visit to St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, yesterday evening. A full congregation listened to an inspiring and very helpful sermon preached by the Bishop, who also read the second Lesson. The service was conducted by the Vicar, Rev. W. Walton Rogers and Mr. J. H. Hunt, Lay Reader.

The anthem "He that watcheth over Israel" from Mendelssohn's Elijah was rendered by the full choir.

After the service, friends gathered in the Church Hall, where a reception was given to welcome the new Bishop. The Vicar, in welcoming Bishop Hall said they were sure to find in him a true leader, not only of the English Church, but also of the great growing Church in China. Mr. W. H. C. Robson and Mr. J. W. Baldwin, Wardens of the Church, also extended welcomes.

Replying briefly, the Bishop said he was happy to feel that St. Andrew's congregation had made him one of themselves.

The Bishop shook hands with all those present and later was entertained to dinner at the Vicarage.

The Hon. Sir Frank Barnard, K.C.M.G., and Lady Barnard arrived in the Colony on Saturday from Canada, per the C.P.S. liner Empress of Canada, which berthed at the Kowloon Wharf. Sir Frank Barnard was born in Toronto in 1856 and was elected to the House of Commons of Canada from 1888 to 1896. He was Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia from 1914 to 1919, and was created Honourable for Life by the Canadian Order in Council in 1927. His recreations are yachting and travelling.

at present is fifty-three and a half miles an hour."

"I have not observed the quarter-mile posts," said I.

"Nor have I. But the telegraph posts upon this line are sixty yards apart, and the calculation is a simple one. I presume that you have already looked into this matter of the murder of John Straker and the disappearance of Silver Blaze?"

"I have seen what the 'Telegraph' and the 'Chronicle' have to say."

"It is one of those cases where the art of the reasoner should be used rather than the sifting of details than for the acquiring of fresh evidence. The tragedy has been so uncommon, so complete, and of such personal importance to so many people, that we are suffering from a plethora of surmise, conjecture and hypothesis. The difficulty is to detach the framework of fact—of absolute, undeniable fact—from the embellishments of theorists and reporters. Then, having established ourselves upon this sound basis, it is our duty to see what inferences may be drawn, and which are the special points upon which the whole mystery turns. On Tuesday evening I received telegrams, both from Colonel Ross, the owner of the horse, and from Inspector Gregory, who is looking after the case, inviting my co-operation."

"Tuesday evening!" I exclaimed. "And this is Thursday morning. Why did you not go down yesterday?"

"Because I made a blunder, my dear Watson—which is, I am afraid, a more common occurrence than anyone would think who only knew me through my memoirs. The fact is that I could not believe it possible that the most remarkable horse in England could long remain concealed, especially in so sparsely inhabited a place as the north of Dartmoor. From hour to hour yesterday I expected to hear that he had been found, and that his abductor was the murderer of John Straker. When, however, another morning had come and I found that, beyond the arrest of young Fitzroy Simpson, nothing had been done, I felt that it was time for me to take action. Yet in some ways I feel that yesterday has not been wasted."

"You have formed a theory, then?"

"At least I have a grip of the essential facts of the case. I shall enumerate them to you, for nothing clears up a case so much as stating it to another person, and I can hardly expect your co-operation if I do not show you the position from which we start."

I lay back against the cushions, puffing my cigar, while Holmes, leaning forward, with his long thin forefinger checking off the points upon the palm of his left hand, gave me a sketch of the events which had led to our journey.

"Silver Blaze," said he, "is from the isonomy stock and holds as brilliant a record as his famous ancestor. He is now in his fifth year, and has brought in turn each of the prizes of the turf to Colonel Ross, his fortunate owner. Up to the time of the catastrophe he was first favourite for the Wessex Cup, the betting being three to one on. He has always, however, been a prime favourite with the racing public, and has never yet disappointed them, so that even at short odds enormous sums of money have been laid upon him. It is obvious, therefore, that there were many people who had the strongest interest in preventing Silver Blaze from being there at the fall of the flag next Tuesday."

"This fact was, of course, appreciated at King's Pyland, where the Colonel's training stable is situated. Every precaution was taken to guard the favourite. The trainer, John Straker, is a retired jockey, who rode in Colonel Ross's colours before he became too heavy for the weighing chair."

JONES BEATS SINN AT BILLIARDS.

Winner's 34 In Championship Encounter.

F. Jones (Dockyard) qualified for the Second Round of the Colony Billiards Championship on Saturday night when he defeated Charles Sinn (Police) by 250 points to 190 at St. Patrick's Club.

The highest break of the match was credited to the winner, who chalked up 34 as the result of all-round play.

The next First Round match will be played this evening at the St. Patrick's Club at 8.30 p.m. when Sgt. Ash (Lincolns) will meet E. Remedios (St. Patrick's).

MYSTERY SHIELD

Cricket Ground Discovery.

The Sydney cricket ground is full of memories, and recently a discovery was made in a locker of a valuable shield which commemorates the first Australian side to visit England, the team of 1878.

No one can explain who presented it, to whom it was presented or the reason behind the presentation.

The shield stands about two feet high and is of solid silver. It has on it the coat of arms, and at the bottom, in gold, a set of stumps with a ball on top and crossed bats.

In a scroll around the edge is a list of the fixtures played by the team, with results; and in the centre are engraved the names of the team.

When the old locker was cleaned out, the shield was found on the floor. It is a work of art, of great value, and to cricket authorities a priceless possession. Mr. R. F. Wyly, secretary and manager, said that the shield must have been in the locker for more than 20 years.

Does anyone know its history? If so, Mr. Wyly would be glad to hear from them.

T. W. Garrett and J. M. Blackham are the only survivors of the 1878 side, and Garrett said that he knew nothing of the origin of the shield. He had never heard of it before.

It is recalled that many years ago, when the N.S.W. Cricket Association did not have the big offices it now possesses, the Sheffield Shield was stored away at the Cricket Ground and forgotten. When another State won it there was a frantic search for the shield, and some time elapsed before it was found.

CLAPTON ORIENT SAVED.

$400 Saves Club From Extinction.

A gift of $400 to Clapton Orient came just in time to save the club from extinction.

In existence since 1906, Clapton got into debt about 18 months ago, and recently the committee was told by the Football Association that unless a proportion of this indebtedness was cleared off by December 1, membership of the League would be withdrawn.

It was arranged to pay the money in instalments, but this course had depleted the club's resources, and a sum of $350 was necessary to ensure the match against Gillingham.

Mr. Frank W. Snewin, chairman of the club, received a telephone call making an offer of $400 to tide the club over its immediate difficulties. The manager, feeling that the call was worth investigating, went along and found that the offer had been made on behalf of Mr. Arthur Phillips, managing director of Messrs. Godfrey Phillips, Ltd.

INTERPORT GOLF.

Manila And Shanghai Teams Coming.

Presentation At R.H.K.Y.C. To Departing Official Time-Keeper

Chief Yeoman of Signals J. E. Kelsall, R.N., who has been the Official Timekeeper of the Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club for the past two years and who is sailing for Home on Saturday next, was the recipient of a silver cigarette case, presented to him by the Commodore (Mr. A. L. Shields), at the Yacht Club on Saturday afternoon.

In making the presentation, Mr. Shields paid a warm tribute to the work done by Mr. Kelsall, and said that the Yacht Club had been very fortunate in having the services of Chief Yeoman Kelsall and his predecessors who had taken a keen interest in the timing and working of handicaps. He hoped the cigarette case would be a souvenir of his sojourn in the Colony, and that he would revisit the Club if chance should bring him again to the China Station.

Replying, Mr. Kelsall thanked the Club for their gift, and said that his duties as official timekeeper had always been a pleasure. The gift would remind him of pleasant days spent at the Yacht Club.

A BAD DAY!

Boat Race Fixed For April 1st.

The Oxford-Cambridge Boat Race has been fixed for April 1, 1933. The Oxford Undergraduates Magazine, "Isis," says that "if Oxford lose the next race we shall be the only University that has lost ten times in succession."

"Even we ourselves could not blame the public if they gradually ceased to look on at an event which has ceased with such calculable regularity to be a race."

Shanghai Yachting

A most successful season of yachting has been concluded at Shanghai, and with the coming of the colder weather the racing craft have been laid up for the winter months, though there are a number of the more hardy cruising owners who have continued over the whole year and enjoy the coldest months as much as the warm summer days. Year has brought a new era into yachting history for there were several incidents and occasions that served to point a finger towards a definite path forward.

The racing season has been different this year inasmuch as the Byrnes boats were the only ones that continued to race throughout the summer apart from the month "off" in August.

In the Byrnes class there has been an excellent amount of keenness and the skippers of these boats have all graduated recently from the Griffin stage with astonishing rapidity. The Ghost won the Championship with a very consistent performance during the season, this being a special tribute to her skipper D. G. Allen, the hard working Honorary Secretary of the Club. The boat was regarded by many when she was built as something of a "white elephant" inasmuch as she failed to carry off all honours in the

INCOGNITOS REMAIN UNBEATEN

Signals Beaten By Two Goals.

MAMAK TOURNAMENT.

Dazzling play by W. Reed at centre half contributed largely to the victory which the Incognitos gained over the Royal Corps of Signals by two clear goals on the Marina ground yesterday morning.

The Incognitos, undefeated as yet, are making a bold bid for premier honours in the Mamak Tournament.

Both goals were netted in the first half by J. M. Pinto and C. C. Francis, respectively. The latter's goal being a brilliant effort.

Brown, in goal for the Signals, played a great game, making many spectacular clearances. Whiteway-Wilkinson, the Signals' prolific goal-scorer, was too well marked by W. Reed, and seldom looked dangerous.

Reed received good support from F. G. Barros and E. V. Reed in the winners' defence, while Cord, H. Jones, Bryce and Scott played well for the Signals.

SOUTH CHINA BEAT THE LEADERS

Tam Scores Decider In Closing Stages.

PARDOE'S GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

(By OUTSIDE LEFT).

Before one of the largest crowds ever to be seen at Sookunpo, South China beat the Royal Artillery by a goal to nil in the last minutes of their First Division League encounter.

The Chinese team played a wonderful game throughout and made the most of their opportunities.

Their victory yesterday will undoubtedly make them hot favourites for the championship.

The Artillery who played excellent football in the first half went to pieces in the second and completely broke down in the latter stages when the game was marred by a series of infringements caused by the fraying of tempers.

The Artillery took a splendid opportunity of taking the lead early on in the game when they were awarded a penalty, but Pardoe hit the cross bar with his shot and the Chinese defence cleared.

The outstanding feature of the game was the defence of both sides.

Allen for the Artillery played a brilliant game and was easily the outstanding player on the field.

Time after time his last minute tackles saved his side from disastrous results, Taylor also played well, being always near when Allen was tackling his man.

VERY FINE BACKS.

The Chinese backs, Lee Tin-sang and Lau Mau also deserved praise. The former shone throughout the game, giving a dazzling display of football when in a tight corner. Lau Mau's first-time clearances were also a feature of the Chinese defence.

One of the finest pieces of combination which ultimately resulted in South China's deserving win, was the Chinese attack.

The whole forward line worked like a machine, Tam Kong-pak was a hard worker, and towards the end of the game made some brilliant openings, most of which, however, failed, owing to Allen's magnificent anticipation.

Fung King-cheong and Ip Pak-wa were marked men and could do little, although the latter was responsible for the beautiful corner kick from which Tam Kong-pak scored.

Pardoe played a true captain's game, and admirably set his forwards in motion time and again. His spilling work was magnificent and he was responsible for the majority of the Artillery openings.

The four wingers from both teams played perfectly, sending in dazzling centres. Young Shui-yok, playing on the Chinese left wing is one of the finest men in that position seen in local soccer this season. His centres were always well-placed and his efforts at scoring were also deserving of praise.

SECOND HALF FAILURE.

The Gunners' forwards played good football in the first half but were inclined to wander all over the field in the second, when opportunities were thrown away by the inside men being out of position.

Both custodians, Lim Thin-chan and Combey were safe, the former being excellent on dangerous-looking occasions, being always on the spot when his back were hard pressed near goal.

Combey showed a safe pair of hands in a splendid display.

The opening stages of the game were thrilling, the Gunners carried the play into the Chinese half, where Leung In-chun accidentally handed in the penalty area.

Pardoe however struck the cross bar from the spot kick amid the shouts from the big crowd, Lau Mau relieved with a long kick up-field.

In the second half Ip Pak-wa, taking a flag kick, placed the ball right over the goal-

Recreio Hold Southon Cup Holders To Draw

C. Osmund and M. Basto Very Fine In Defence

(By Centre Half.)

THE St. Andrew's Club Ladies' holders of the Southern runners-up Cup, were surprisingly held to a goalless draw by the Club de Recreio in the Caer Clark Cup match on the Marina ground on Saturday afternoon.

On the run of the play, the Saints should have won, as they did most of the pressing, but they were unable to score. The Recreio, who were best served in defence by C. Osmund and M. Basto, indulged in packing their goal with successful results.

Commencing on the offensive, the Saints forwards were combining well, M. Chan being responsible for good work on the right wing. Most of her centres were however, wasted. The Recreio indulged in crowding their goal, and thus the Saints experienced a difficult time when in the defence. Play was transferred to the other end, where R. Rose was tested by O. Ribeiro, a centre-forward of great promise. The Saints defence, in which P. Woolley, L. Woolley and M. White shone, worked hard and kept the Recreio attackers at bay.

M. BRYSON'S LAPSE.

Resuming the attack, M. Woolley broke through and passed neatly to M.

Bryson, but the latter blundered and a great opportunity was wasted. Shortly after, through fine work on the left wing by P. Gilts, the Saints were again dangerous, but E. Rosario did well to clear. The Recreio repulsed many attacks; their right wing, C. Botelho was well marked by E. Landolt. A minute before the interval, M. Bryson failed badly when he had only A. Almada to beat. In the second half, the Saints enjoyed most of the exchanges, and A. Almada was given a busy time in goal, but she cleared admirably with her stick. The Saints maintained pressure, but hesitancy in passing was their chief failing. C. Silva appeared to be off form, but A. Alves and M. Remedios gave the Saints defence many anxious moments, on one occasion the former missing by only inches.

BORDERERS SURPRISED BY ATHLETIC.

Mak's "Hat Trick."

The Chinese Athletic overwhelmed the Borderers by 5 goals to 1 in their First Division League encounter on the Club ground yesterday.

The Borderers opened the scoring through Duncan who netted with a fast rising shot, but the Chinese soon equalised through Tang Kwong-sum, and took the lead through Mak who scored the "hat-trick" to give the Athletic a three-goal lead at the interval.

In the second half the Athletic enjoyed the majority of the play, and added to their score through Ho Chai-yin.

NAVAL ENTRY FOR DOUBLES.

Packer To Partner Shaw.

REQUEST TO L. T. A.

Comdr. Packer of H. M. S. Kent who yesterday succeeded in taking a set off E. C. Fincher, runner up in the Colony Singles Championship for the last three years, has entered the Colony Open Doubles Championship in partnership with Comdr. R. J. Shaw, M. R. E.

Comdr. Packer and Comdr. Shaw have written in to the Hong Kong Lawn Tennis Association requesting that their First Round tie be delayed until the H. M. S. Kent, which leaves Hong Kong on February 15, returns to the Colony on February 25. The First Round commences on February 15.

It is hoped that the H.K.L.T.A. will see their way to granting the request, as this is the first formidable Naval entry for many years.

Y.M.C.A. BEAT MACAO FOR THE FIRST TIME

Brilliance Of H. J. Lowe Largely Responsible.

FOWLER AND BROWNE SCORE.

The brilliance of H. J. D. Lowe was responsible for the triumph of the Y. M. C. A. by 2 goals to 1 over the Macao Hockey Club at Macao yesterday. The home team led by a goal at the interval, but G. H. Fowler and W. J. Browne gave the "Y" a well deserved win. This is the first time in the history of the Y.M.C.A. Hockey Club that Macao have been beaten on their own ground. Last year the "Y" lost by the odd goal.

The injury sustained by D. McLellan in Saturday's rugby match was the cause of Lowe filling the centre half position, and he gave one of his best displays this season. His long reach stood him in good stead and his passes to the forwards were both well-judged and well directed.

The Y.M.C.A. were all over their opponents in the first half and it was only the brilliance of the Macao goalkeeper that prevented the "Y" crossing over four goals in the lead. The home forwards attacked only spasmodically and it was from one of these raids that L. D. Skinner blundered badly and allowed the centre-forward a gift goal. This early success for Macao was decidedly against the run of the play, and the "Y" were unfortunate to cross over a goal in arrears.

In the second half the Macao forwards became more dangerous and it was the "Y" defence which now shone. E. O. Murphy was in splendid form, and with Lowe playing well above his usual game, the defence triumphed. Skinner showed much improvement in this half and brought off several spectacular saves, showing none of the lack of confidence which featured his play in the first half.

The "Y" forwards showed splendid combination in the first half, but in the latter stages of the game became very ragged. They deserved at least four goals in the first half and none in the second. The Macao half back line were in splendid form and their goalkeeper gave a brilliant display.

Y.M.C.A.:-D. Skinner, E. Tate, E. O. Murphy, A. Bates, H. J. D. Lowe, A. D. Sommer, J. M. Wilson, G. C. Burnett, W. J. Browne, G. H. Fowler and J. J. Price.

Two Players For The Coming Interport

Hongkong v. Kowloon Would Prove Interesting Trial

K.C.C. SELECTORS WORRIED

(By Athlete.)

CRICKETERS are now attempting to uphold their reputations with a view to the Interport against Shanghai next November. That Interport will be played before players have found their true form and the Selectors will, as in former years, be almost forced to judge a player more on this present season's form than on current form.

We have two new players who should be included in the Colony eleven—T. A. Pearce and Lt. Garthwaite. The former is just getting into his stride, though his half-century against Craigengower was by no means a classic knock.

He has yet to overcome the difference of light before we will see him at his best. His fielding at cover point is only surpassed by that of Mid. Bennett, and he bowls an immaculate length on occasion as was clearly seen in the Club's game against the Navy when he took 6 for 13.

GARTHWAITE has proved himself the Colony's best all-rounder by his displays in the Triangular Tournament series. He is a more dangerous bowler than Lt. Hamilton, Lt. Mueson, D. J. N. Anderson, or H. Owen Hughes, all of whom are recognised to be in the first flight of all-rounders. His batting is of first-class standard, his defensive shots being so powerful that in other batmen they might be considered aggressive strokes. He has not experienced a great deal of luck this season, though he has amassed several scores of over 50 with 97 against the Navy as his highest total. In the two-day match against the K.C.C. he was unfortunately run out by F. S. W. Smith when well set for his first century in the Colony. His bowling is dangerous when he strikes his length as he "does something" with every ball, but he is very inclined to bowl short of a length. He is a useful slips fieldman and an almost certain choice against Shanghai.

THE departure of G. R. M. Ricketts has been a blow to the Colony, as he would probably have gained recognition and caused Shanghai much anxiety. We cannot, however, grumble when such good new talent is at our disposal. D. J. N. Anderson will of course be unable to play as he leaves for Home shortly—another big blow, as Anderson is showing magnificent form this season.

LONG to collect a useful League score, but his innings against Craigengower on Saturday was a very streaky one. F. K. Lee caused him much anxiety during his stay. If he forsakes cross-bat methods, which featured his batting last season, he should again be in the forefront of local batmen.

IT seems a shame that a Kowloon-Hong Kong fixture has been suggested season in and season out without having yet been seriously considered. Kowloon, who are undoubtedly handicapped by the lack of teams, could be allowed the services of Navy players in addition to the premier side.

"SILVER BLAZE"

"He has served the Colonel for five years as jockey and for seven as trainer, and has always shown himself to be a zealous and honest servant. Under him were three lads, for the establishment was a small one, containing only four horses in all. One of these lads sat up each night in the stable, while the others slept in the loft. All three bore excellent characters. John Straker, who is a married man, lived in a small villa about two hundred yards from the stables. He has no children, keeps one maid-servant, and is comfortably off. The country round is very lonely, but about half a mile to the north there is a small cluster of villas which have been built by a Tavistock contractor for the use of invalids and others who may wish to enjoy the pure Dartmoor air. Tavistock itself lies two miles to the west, while across the moor, also about two miles distant, is the larger training establishment of Capleton, which belongs to Lord Backwater, and is managed by Silas Brown. In every other direction the moor is a complete wilderness, inhabited only by a few roaming gipsies. Such was the general situation last Monday night, when the catastrophe occurred.

"On that evening the horses had been exercised and watered as usual, and the stables were locked up at nine o'clock. Two of the lads, walked up to the trainer's house, where they had supper in the kitchen, while the third, Ned Hunter, remained on guard. At a few minutes after nine the maid, Edith Baxter, carried down to the stables her supper, which consisted of a dish of curried mutton. She took no liquid, as there was a water-trap in the stables, and it was the rule that the lad on duty should drink nothing else. The maid carried a lantern with her, as it was very dark, and the path ran across the open moor.

"Edith Baxter was within thirty yards of the stables when a man appeared out of the darkness and called to her to stop. As he stepped into the circle of yellow light thrown by the lantern she saw that he was a person of gentlemanly bearing, dressed in a grey suit of tweed, with a cloth cap. He wore gaiters, and carried a heavy stick with a knob to it. She was most impressed, however, by the extreme pallor of his face and by the nervousness of his manner. His age, she thought, would be rather over thirty than under it.

"Can you tell me where I am?" he asked. "I had almost made up my mind to sleep on the moor when I saw the light of your lantern." "You are close to the King's Pyland training stables," she said. "Oh, indeed! What a stroke of luck!" he cried. "I understand that a stable boy sleeps there alone every night. Perhaps that is his supper which you are carrying to him. Now I am sure that you would not be too proud to earn the price of a new dress, would you?" He took a piece of white paper folded up out of his waistcoat pocket. "See that the boy has this to-night, and you shall have the prettiest frock that money can buy."

"She was frightened by the earnestness of his manner, and ran past him to the window through which she was accustomed to hand the meals. It was already table inside. She had begun to tell him of what had happened when the stranger came up again. "Good evening," said he, looking through the window, "I wanted to have a word with you." The girl has worn that as he spoke she noticed the corner of the little paper packet protruding from his closed hand.

"What business have you here?" asked the lad. "It's business that may put something into your pocket," said the other. "You've two horses in for the Wessex Cup—Silver Blaze and Bayard. Let me have the straight tip, and you won't be a loser. Is it a fact that at the weights Bayard could give the other a hundred yards in five furlongs, and that the stable have put their money on him?"

"So you're one of those damned touts," cried the lad. "I'll show you how we serve them in King's Pyland!" He sprang up and rushed across the stable to unlock the door. The girl fled away to the house, but as she ran she looked back and saw that the stranger was leaning through the window. A minute later, however, when Hunter rushed out with the hound, he was gone, and though the lad ran all round the buildings he failed to find any trace of him.

"One moment!" I asked, "Did the stable boy, when he ran out with the dog, leave the door unlocked behind him?" "Excellent," Watson: excellent!" murmured my companion. "The importance of the point struck me so forcibly that I sent a special wire to Dartmoor yesterday to clear the matter up. The boy locked the door before he left it. The window, I may add, was too large enough for a man to get through."

"Hunter waited until his fellow-grooms had returned, when he sent a message up to the trainer and told him what had occurred. Straker excited at hearing the account, although he does not seem to have quite realised its significance, left him, however, vaguely uneasy, and Mrs. Straker, waking at one in the morning, found that he was dressing. In reply to her inquiries, he said that he could not sleep on account of his anxiety about the horses, and that he intended to walk down to the stables to see that all was well. She begged him to remain at home, as she could hear the rain pattering against the windows, but in spite of her entreaties he pulled on his large mackintosh and left the house.

"Mrs. Straker awoke at seven in the morning, and found that her husband had not yet returned. She dressed herself hastily, called the maid, and set off for the stables. The door was open; inside, huddled together upon a chair, Hunter was sunk in a state of absolute stupor, the favourite's stall was empty, and there were no signs of his trainer.

"The two lads who slept in the chaff-cutting loft above the harness-room were quickly roused. They had heard nothing during the night, for they are both sound sleepers. Hunter was obviously under the influence of some powerful drug; and as no sense could be got out of him, he was carried off while the two lads and the two women ran out in search of the absentees. They still had hopes that the trainer had for some reason taken out the horse for early exercise, but on ascending the knoll near the house, from which all the neighbouring moors were visible, they perceived no signs of the favourite, but they perceived something which warned them that they were in the presence of a tragedy.

"About a quarter of a mile from the stables John Straker's overcoat was flapping from a furze bush. Immediately beyond there was a bowl-shaped depression in the moor, and at the bottom of this, close to the edge of the unfortunate trainer's horse, lay the body of the favourite, a savage blow from some heavy weapon, and he was wounded in the thigh, where there was a long, clean cut, inflicted evidently by some very sharp instrument. I had the clear, however, that Straker had defended himself vigorously against his assailants, for in his right hand he held a small knife which was clotted with blood up to the handle, while in his left he grasped a red and black silk cravat, which was recognised by the maid as having been worn on the preceding evening by the stranger who had visited the stables.

"Hunter, on recovering from his stupor, was also quite positive as to the ownership of the cravat. He was equally certain that the same stranger had, while standing at the window, dragged his curried mutton and so deprived the stables of their watchman.

"As to the missing horse, there were abundant proofs in the mud which lay at the bottom of the fatal hollow that he had been there at the time of the struggle. But from that moment he has disappeared, and although a large reward has been offered, and all the gipsies of Dartmoor are on the alert, no news has come of him. Finally, an analysis has shown that the remains of his supper, left by the stable lad, contain an appreciable quantity of powdered opium, while the people of the house parroted of the same dish on the same night without any ill-effect.

"Those are the main facts of the case, stripped of all surmises and stated as baldly as possible. I shall recapitulate what the police have done in the case, and then I shall give you a small sketch of the events which have taken place since the tragedy. Inspector Gregory, to whom the case has been committed, is an extremely competent officer. Were he not gifted with imagination he might rise to great heights in his profession. On his arrival he promptly found and arrested the two lads, and at the same time he was informed that the stable boy, who was a little difficult in finding him, for he was thoroughly well known in the neighbourhood. His name, it appears, was Fitzroy Simpson. He was a man of excellent birth and education, who had squandered a fortune upon the turf, and who had now been doing a little quiet and profitable bookmaking in the sporting clubs of London. An examination of his betting book shows that bets to the amount of £5,000 had been registered by him against the favourite.

"On being arrested he volunteered the statement that he had come down to Dartmoor in the hope of getting some information about the King's Pyland horses, and also about Desborough, the second favourite, which was in charge of Silas Brown, at the Capleton stables. He did not attempt to deny that he had acted as described upon the evening before, but declared that he had no sinister designs, and had simply wished to obtain first-hand information. When confronted with the cravat he turned very pale, and was utterly unable to account for its presence in the hand of the murdered man. His wet clothing showed that he had been out in the storm of the night before, and his stick, which was a Penang lawyer, weighted with lead, was just such a weapon as might, by repeated blows, have inflicted the terrible injuries to which the trainer had succumbed.

"On the other hand, there was no wound upon his person, while the state of Straker's knife would show that one, at least, of his assailants must bear his mark upon him. There you have it all in a nutshell, Watson, and if you can give me any light I shall be infinitely obliged to you."

"I had listened with the greatest interest to the statement which Holmes, with characteristic clearness, had laid before me. Though most of the facts were familiar to me, I had not sufficiently appreciated their relative importance, nor their connection with each other.

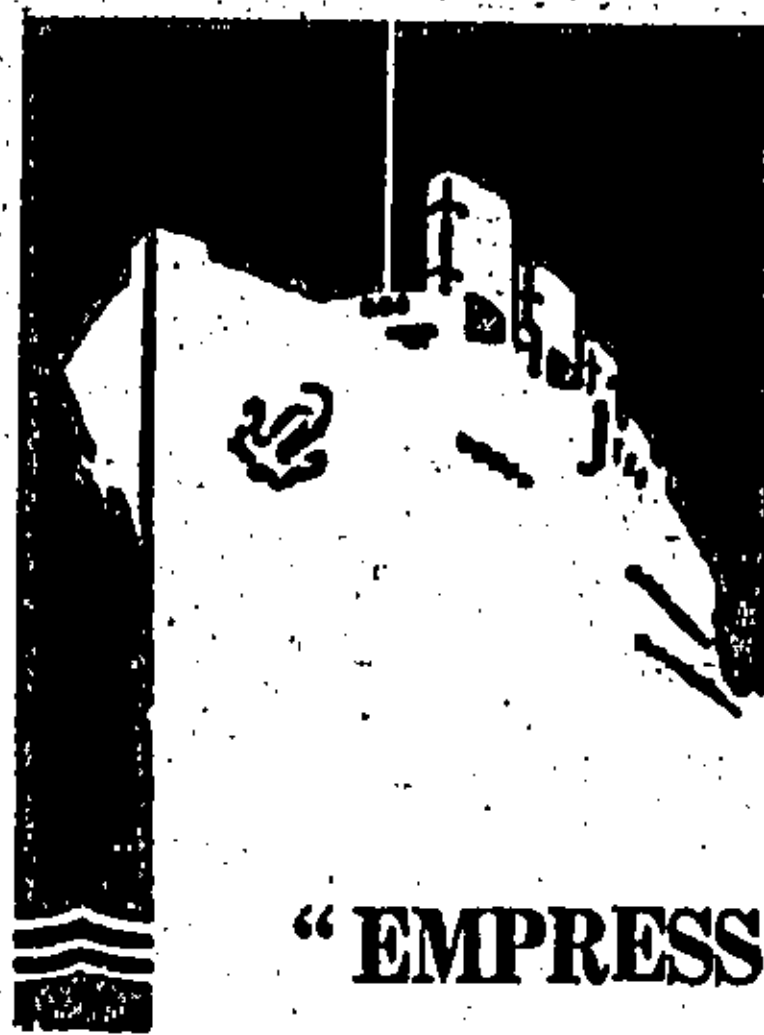

"It is not possible," I suggested, "that the incised wound upon Straker may have been caused by his own knife in the convulsive struggles which follow any brain injury?" "It is more than possible; it is probable," said Holmes. "In that case, one of the main points in favour of the accused disappears."

"And yet," said I, "even now I fail to understand what the theory of the police can be."

"I am afraid that whatever theory we state has very grave objections to it," returned my companion. "The police imagine, I take it, that the crazy Simpson, having dragged the lad, and having in some way obtained a duplicate key, opened the stable door and took out the horse, with the intention, apparently of kidnapping him altogether. His bridle is missing, so that Simpson must have put it on. Then, having left the door open behind him, he was leading the horse away over the moor when he was either met or overtaken by the trainer. A row naturally ensued, Simpson beat out the trainer's brains with his heavy stick without receiving any injury from the small knife which Straker used in self-defence, and then the thief either led the horse on to some secret hiding place, or else it may have been killed during the struggle, and he now wandering out on the moors. That is the case as it is, all other explanations are more improbable still. However, I shall very quickly test the matter when I am once upon the spot, and until then I really cannot see how we can get much further than our present position."

"It was evening before we reached the little town of Tavistock, which lies, like the boss of a shield, in the middle of the huge circle of Dartmoor. Two gentlemen were awaiting us at the station: the one a tall fair man with long-like hair and beard, and curiously penetrating light blue eyes; the other a small dark person, very neat and dapper, in a frock coat and gaiters, with trim little side-whiskers and an eye-glass. The latter was Colonel Ross, the well-known sportsman, the other Inspector Gregory, a man who had acquired a reputation as an English detective service."

"I am delighted that you have come down, Mr. Holmes," said the Colonel. "The Inspector here has done all that could possibly be suggested, but I wish to leave no stone unturned in connection with the case of Straker and his horse. Have there been any fresh developments?" asked Holmes. (To be continued To-morrow)

THE DOMINIONS' MOST ILL-USED MAN.

But what a reward for a life given to the service of his country and the redemption of a continent! "The valour of others acquired, I enlarged and gave shape and consistency to the dominion which you hold there; I preserved it... I gave you all, and you have rewarded me with confiscation, disgrace and a life of imprisonment."

Bitter words, but true.

Results of Our Rule.

The final verdict on Warren Hastings must evidently depend upon the ultimate judgment which History must pass on British dominion in India. If British rule is condemned as a crime or even a blunder the lives of Warren Hastings and the other great men who have given their all to India have been lived in vain.

If, on the other hand, we believe that our rule in India represents one of the most brilliant achievements of our race, that it has conferred great blessings upon India, and has contributed to the well-being and progress of humanity, then Warren Hastings must be accounted one of the greatest Englishmen of all time.

This is a question on which foreigners are better judges than ourselves. Let a great French philosopher and a broad-minded Moslem answer it. "There never," said De Tocqueville, "has been anything so extraordinary under the sun as the conquest and still more the government of India by the British."

"Be not unjust to that nation which is ruling over you, and think on this—how upright is her rule. Of such benevolence as the English Government shows to the foreign nations under her rule—there is no example in the history of the world." So spoke Sir Syed Ahmed, the benevolent founder of the Mohammedan College at Aligarh. With his verdict we may be content.

Colonel Shih put up a stout resistance against the Japanese attack on the walled city of Shanhai-kwan yesterday.

Under cover of the heavy machine gun-fire, the Japanese soldiers tried to climb up the city walls with ladders and threw hand-grenades into the city; but they were repulsed by the Chinese sentries on the city walls. More than 200 shells were discharged towards the city throughout the day, destroying a large number of houses and inflicting heavy casualties on the inhabitants.

Owing to the compact defence of the Chinese garrison, no progress was made by the Japanese up till this morning.

The telegraph and telephone offices of Shanhai-kwan (outside the city) were occupied by the Japanese and the wires severed. Eight Japanese armoured trains and thirteen troop trains participated in the attack on Shanhai-kwan.—Kuo Min.

Well Planned.

Peiping, Jan. 4.
It is learnt that the Japanese attack on Shanhai-kwan had long been contemplated. On the afternoon of New Year's Day, the Japanese residents at Shanhai-kwan were notified to remove to the vicinity of the Japanese barracks.

The Japanese troops opened fire on the city the same night.

Invasion of Jehol?

Peiping, Jan. 3.
The critical situation in Jehol is the all-absorbing topic both at Peiping and Tientsin. According to messages from Jehol, the Japanese, who have long made preparations, are expected soon to carry out their plan of invading Jehol.

The Japanese soldiers at Chaoyangshih and Nanling along the Chinchow-Chaoyang branch railway are already preparing to advance. Those stationed at Taonan and Tungliao, northern Liaoning, have been sent to western Heilungkiang pursue the loyal Heilungkiang units, which are proceeding to Jehol from Heilungkiang to secure supplies of clothing, provisions and ammunition.

It is learnt that the Japanese have decided to first wipe out the Volunteers along the Liaoning-Jehol border before launching the large-scale drive on Jehol. Severe fighting has occurred between the Japanese and the Volunteers under Ma Tzu-tan, Sung Kiu-ling and Sun Chao-ying near Peipiao, on the Jehol-Liaoning border.

Japanese airplanes have been scouting frequently over Chengte, Lingyuan and Chaoyang. A cash reward of $2,000 is given by the Volunteer Headquarters for every Japanese airplane shot down by the volunteers or militia corps. It is reported that five Japanese airplanes have been shot down during the past month.—Kuo Min.

EMERGENCY SQUAD STOP PRAYA FIGHT.

Iron Bars Used.

A disturbance on the Praya on Saturday night, to which the Police Emergency Squad was called out, had a sequel in the Central Police Court this morning when before Mr. Wynne-Jones two Chinese men were charged with disorderly conduct.

Inspector R. Shannon, prosecuting, said that the trouble probably arose over a dispute among gamblers at a gambling school, which had apparently been conducted on one of the steamers berthed at the praya wharf. Iron bars were used. The defendants were fined $10 each and were also bound over.
